MEDICINAL.

A GOOD BUILDING UP of a run-down system can be accomplished by the use of Dr. Farrow's Golden Medical Discovery. A long procession of diseases start from a torpid liver and impure blood. Take it, as you ought, when you feel the first symptoms (languor, loss of appetite, dullness, depression) and you will save yourself from something serious.

As an appetizing, restorative tonic to repel disease and build up the needed flesh and strength, there's nothing so equal. It restores every organ into healthy action, purifies and enriches the blood, braces up the whole system, and restores health and vigor.

For every disease caused by a disordered liver or impure blood, it is the only guaranteed remedy. If it doesn't benefit you, or if you have your money back.

A Wonderful Lake.

Long before mankind ever heard of this little earth and started its conquest from sea monsters, says the Tacoma Ledger, the area that is distinguished by the name of Palouse country had been subjected to violent upheavals and radical changes in topography. A great island sea rested here for many centuries, and the chemical action of the waters enriched the soil simultaneously with leveling the sediment in the form of a vast plain. Internal convulsions, whether of volcanic origin or from shrinkage of the planet consequent upon the cooling process then going on--perhaps both combined--raised the submerged plain high and dry, with a steep decline to the westward.

The rushing flood cut the land into ridges and ravines, high bluffs and lonely rocks being scattered promiscuously in living evidence of the revolution. The surface thus presents a broken and picturesque scene. Chief among the products of these prehistoric convulsions and deluges is a canyon over in the northeastern part of Whitman county containing Rock Lake, a sheet of water twelve miles long by about one hundred rods wide, bordered by cliffs ascending perpendicularly to heights of 1,700 to 2,500 feet.

The canyon of Rock Lake runs east to west. It is a deep hole in a plateau of solid rock, and the bottom has never been sounded by man. The eastward extremity falls abruptly from the bed of a small creek down and down five hundred feet, over another cascade, down another plunge of six hundred feet, and off finally over a second cascade three hundred feet to the bottom. Down at the bottom is a valley, one by three miles in extent, and covered with the prettiest coat of tropical foliage to be found anywhere. The climate in this declivity is as tropical and delightful as that which gives Hawaii an envied fame all the world over. The temperature seldom falls below 60° Fahrenheit and rarely goes above 90°.

The cold of winter is seemingly unable to reach the level of the valley, owing to the internal warmth naturally belonging to a hole so deep. The heat of summer is tempered by the cooling influence of the lake adjoining. The west end of this little Garden of Eden jumps abruptly over a precipice 100 feet into Rock Lake, and the western end of the lake, twelve miles farther on, finds an outlet through a narrow passageway between hills sloping sharply and soon breaking into dismembered pyramids of basal rock.

An Indian legend of this remarkable lake makes it the home of a monstrous sea-serpent. The remnants of the red tribes which used to frequent its shores tell their white neighbors that no Indian can venture into the water, either for a bath or a pleasure trip in a canoe, without being swallowed whole by a hideous reptile, and to this day the aborigines look upon Rock Lake with the same apprehension that an old-time orthodox ponderer over the terrors of purgatory.

Their legend says anentire tribe was washed to destruction and eaten not many centuries ago, all to satisfy the greed of this very monster. At another time, during the outbreaks quelled by Colonel Slepoe in 1858, a band of noble red men, in their eagerness to escape the vigilance of Uncle Sam's bluecoats, tried to conceal themselves above the lake in the little paradise, but were overtaken by the great fish, the legend avows, and sent to eternity.

FOUND THE IRON BOX.--James Stewart died in Scotland near the end of the last century, leaving a vast estate and a large sum of money to his son, James, then in Pennsylvania, who shortly afterward was killed by Indians. James' widow, with two sons and a daughter, afterward went to Canada and settled near the present site of the village of Kingsville. When the widow died an iron box containing valuables is said to have been placed in her grave. A few days after the grave was opened by descendants of her daughter and the iron box found. It is said to contain all necessary papers to prove title to over 1,000 acres of land in Pennsylvania and other property left by the elder Stewart.

ESCAPED!

"There was a numb, creepy feeling in my hands and legs. I had to rub and heat them until they were sore to partially overcome their numbness. Had a strange weakness in my back and stomach. Physicians said it was creeping paralysis, for which there was no relief. I doctored year and a half without benefit. Then I used Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and was cured. Gained 30 pounds."--James Kane, La Rue, O. Nervine is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent by Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., $1 a bottle for $5.
